Law requiring beforehand one month residency in French Polynesia has just been abolished. From now on, American couples can easily get married in Tahiti and leave with a wedding certificate in due form.

Tahiti will perform US citizen couples' weddings

By solving the main legal requirement for the organization of a civil wedding in Tahiti, French Polynesia is now part of the inner circle of paradise destinations able to deliver a wedding certificate valid in the United States. Previously, the national civil code required beforehand one month residency for the American bride and groom-to-be. From now on, even a short stay in Polynesia allows lovers to get officially married and to come back with all the required documents necessary to validate their union in their country of origin.

This new possibility is a happy complement to the traditional wedding, already offered for many years in Polynesia, and brings happiness to couples who want to live or relive the Big Day through an intense immersion into the traditional Polynesian culture.
